I've seen a couple of different posts regarding this, but I'm confused. I was playing a game last night and the "Lone Wolf" option popped up. It was around midnight and I decided it was worth a shot, so I threw my sonic disk on him and hit the red arrow on him, knowing it would get him down to 90 damage. I was fully aware that it would debuff him for some amount of time after the attack, so I was hoping to simply attack him and hope he was nearby enough to get the follow-up attack to set him back up to 100 points of damage. However, he set back to "low health" for the duration of the attack. I can't seem to find any mention of whether or not the debuffed status is factored in on the damage of the attack. Does the damage only apply to the first 100 points of damage it deals or something? A: The Lone Wolf's attack deals a 2x multiplier damage bonus to spells, but one that affects the Lone Wolf's spell damage. Their Soulfire can then be used to bring the Lone Wolf back up to 100 points of damage, at which time their Soulfire can be used again to bring him up to 150 points of damage, etc. This is covered in the game's Pocket Guide (PDF) under Spells (on page 10): The Lone Wolf's Soulfire increases their spell damage. A: As stated in my comment, He will become debuffed when using spells, and will no longer deal damage. While he is debuffed, he does not take any damage from attacks. If you deal enough damage to pull him out of the debuff, he will take normal damage from attacks. This damage can

'How long are you going to give this game to come out? We've been waiting for this game to come out since we were given the chance to buy it so we're not gonna be waiting any longer. In regards to the problem that people are having with Hot Pursuit, there's definitely issues with people having problems downloading the game. It's probably something that needs to be changed with EA so that people don't have to download it over and over again. However, all-in-all it's a good game and we just don't want the wait any longer. It's a really good game'. 'We're really happy and we're really proud to have our name on that game. It's a new experience to us to have a game like that on the Playstation 3 and it's a new experience to us to have all that kind of publicity for Hot Pursuit. So we're really excited about that'. 'For me, the game was just a fun game to play. The fans kept on saying that they wanted a Need for Speed game with a multiplayer. So I know that they love racing games, but when I heard how the fans were saying they wanted it and we have their petitions on the internet, I thought that we should do something. So it just so happened that someone spoke to their boss and we could get on the list for Need for Speed'. ADVERTISEMENT 6d1f23a050
