I can access to app's content in browser. I set the path to it via .env file in my root folder. I use MacOS Yosemite. In my wamp server, when I look in phpmyadmin, there is a table named "users". But when I try to insert data in it, using Laravel Migration, there's no table there. What should I do? A: The table should be created automatically. Maybe the database isn't connected yet to the server. Open the phpmyadmin, go to the "Database section", and click on the "test connection" icon. Then click on the "test connection". Q: subclassed PageControl control I have created a subclassed version of the PageControl control, for my own use, to make things a little more convenient. In the XIB files, I have a custom subclassed control, with a File's Owner pointing to the superclass, and an IBOutlet for the control. I've had no problem subclassing the PageControl, but
