Objective: To assess the relationship between gait and function in patients with adhesive capsulitis of the shoulder using Computerized Video Gait Analysis (CVGA) and the Gait Function Outcome Measure (GFOM). Methods: A total of 98 patients with adhesive capsulitis of the shoulder were included in this study, and matched with 97 controls based on age, sex and body mass index (BMI). Knee and hip flexion and extension were measured at 90° and 180° using the Gait Deviation Index (GDI). Thoracic and lumbar curvatures were measured using the Gait Deviation Index (GDI) in which the angle is corrected by body angle of the side in which rotation is reported. CVGA was used to evaluate walking speed, gait asymmetry, the cycle time, stride length, step length, single limb support time, double limb support time, step time, swing time, stance time, joint angle, the range of motion (ROM), and the Gait Function Outcome Measure (GFOM). GDI, GDI corrected by body angle of the side in which rotation is reported and CVGA were significantly correlated with the GFOM. GDI was the strongest predictor among CVGA and the GFOM. Conclusions: GDI was the most effective method in evaluating gait. GDI is a rapid and simple way to understand gait function in patients with adhesive capsulitis.It's been a while since the latest update on Halo 4, and here we are again, a holiday release date for Halo 4: With just days until Thanksgiving and Black Friday, I want to remind you that there are still lots of great deals and discounts for the upcoming holiday on all Halo titles.
