For the past seven years the Middlesex County Citizen has been serving and preserving democracy in Middlesex County. It is a non-partisan monthly news publication of "county-wide" (MA-to-CT) interest. The bi-monthly newspaper was started in January 2000 by Rob Gleason, former editor of the Worcester Evening News. Although Gleason has since been succeeded by a group of journalists on the staff of the paper, Gleason remains the publisher. The Middlesex County Citizen won best staff publication in the state by the Associated Press in 2000 and again in 2002. Region The Region is the print publication of the seven county-wide school districts in Middlesex County. The Region provides summaries of school events, news about the school districts, and more. Schools Academic Academy School is a pseudonym for Academic Academy. It is a specialized learning community designed to meet the needs of children with ADHD, Asperger's, and/or other learning disabilities (LDs) and their families.
