Mike Kinsley David Michael "Mike" Kinsley, CM (born March 30, 1947 in Vancouver, British Columbia) is a retired ice hockey player and teacher. During his playing days, he was 6'7" tall and weighed 210 lbs. Kinsley played 3 seasons in the NHL, all for the Toronto Maple Leafs. He was born in Vancouver. Mike Kinsley was drafted by the Maple Leafs in the 1st Round (6th overall) of the 1968 NHL Amateur Draft. He played in 15 games during the 1968-69 season, and would continue to play 2 more seasons with the club in the 1970-71 and 1971-72 seasons. Kinsley was the first player in Maple Leaf history to be suspended, serving a 5-game suspension during the 1970-71 season for cursing at an umpire, during a game against the Chicago Black Hawks on November 18, 1970. He also received his first career hat trick against the Flyers on December 12, 1970. Kinsley played his first professional game on October 10, 1969, against the Syracuse Blazers. He was at the time playing NCAA hockey with the Lakehead University Thunderwolves. He played 2 seasons with the Maple Leafs, and he also played 2 additional NHL seasons with the Ottawa Nationals. After retiring from hockey, Kinsley went back to Lakehead University and taught and coached for the Lakehead Thunderwolves. elcome to the final frontier': Google 'translate' on Arm With ARM unveiling its 14-strong Cortex-A series of Cortex-A9 and Cortex-A15 silicon — all derivatives based on Intel x86 processors — it is clear that the internet t is very eager to cover new ground and explore uncharted lands in silicon and software. And to say that the landscape is barren would be the understatement of the century, but that is no longer the case, at least with gle. This year, the company has launched its own fully-fledged 64-bit ARM processor dubbed 'Project Tango' which is designed for the wearable computing arena where the company sees immense potential. As big as gle are, it is also clear that the company has had to leverage its vast resources, partnerships and relationships to get off the ground with the project, and it has really done everything in its power to make it happen, as nounced in a live stream video of the event. Leading hardware experts, on stage, gave their final verdict on the project and spoke about the company's take on developing Tango in general and future development of rable computing area, all of which make sense. From that brief, it is clear that yes the software is at the front of things, but that the hardware is going to be critical to the technology, which makes sense when you think that Google's approach to the matter has been to effectively create a computing system onboard wearable devices. While most Google Maps apps on smart phones and tablets are headless, Google'
