Studies on the antileukemic activity of subtoxic doses of methylnitrosourea. Methylnitrosourea (MNU) was fed to mice at doses ranging from 2 to 50 mg/kg body weight/day for periods varying from 3 to 30 days. In the most favorable experimental conditions, 8 out of 24 mice at a dose of 20 mg/kg body weight/day for 30 days survived. The antileukemic activity of methylnitrosourea administered in this manner was restricted to the high specific activity of the drug and corresponded to its polymeric distribution. The results demonstrate that a low dose of MNU may reverse the leukemic state in mice which have been rendered more susceptible to the leukemogenic effect of a single intraperitoneal injection of MNU. This invention relates to a method of making a semiconductor device and, more particularly, to a method of forming a semiconductor device by etching an epitaxially grown silicon-germanium film formed on a silicon-germanium substrate. As a method of efficiently producing epitaxially grown silicon-
