I hope this will work and no one is critical. I really want to get it done before I go back to my home and I need to do it soon. This will likely be a nightmare for me and my team, as we have a lot of my graduate students in the lab, all the equipment in this space is a bit complicated, and a lot of these experiments might take quite a bit of time to set up. In reality I had a bit of a dry run about a week ago, and I was pretty green and I had to make major adjustments, but it worked fine. I thought things went well for the most part but I still

A: This is because your if statement is tripping over the break line. The original code looks like: if (price > 100) { alert('Sale') currCheck +=1 } The closing bracket } is also inside the if statement. Before: if (price > 100) { alert('Sale') currCheck += 1 } After: if (price > 100) { alert('Sale') currCheck += 1 } { } You could use a tab, enter, or semicolon. My eyes did not see the closing bracket:) Q: Time Signature and Beats Per Minute I am relatively new to music theory and am struggling to understand how beats per minute works. For example, the opening chords of this song 'Where Are You Now' - In "Where Are You Now" it opens with the measure being played in the key of E minor. One measure consists of 4 E's, then 4 F's, then 4 D's and so on (I.i) - A B F# D B A. The measure is then said to be in common time with 4/4 time signature. Why is this the case? Is the E (4/4) and D (2/4) really the note value that is being considered? This is where I am really struggling. I think I have an idea of how the lyrics might relate to the music - the song is talking about where she is at the moment, but I am not sure how that fits into the music. I would greatly appreciate it if anyone can explain to me in layman's terms (as I am completely new to music theory) how beats per minute works in this specific example. A: The notation at the beginning of the song is: I. i - Asus4 - Asus4 The durations for the first and last repeated note are the same (and for simplicity the second and third notes are too). This means that the only rhythmic thing needed to keep the rhythm going is the triplet feel, and therefore beats. The measure is said to be in common time with a 4/4 time signature 0cc13bf012
