The most significant events happened more than a thousand years ago, but this is where the story begins... In a once magical place, a strange conflict was created between the heavens and the earth. A flood was created as the first fire... The sun began to rise and a new civilization was born. The people who bear the name "human" have now reached the golden era of history. As they learned to cultivate the land, they also learned to write letters with ink, forming the oldest and longest running civilization. The beginning of civilization has ended, and the world is now engulfed in a world of struggle, power, and greed. In this civil war of "rich" and "poor," even a dreamer would be unable to enter the world of history. ... The heaven and earth, which both fell into a world of stagnation... One day, a wind of change was born from the depths of the land. A powerful legend... Even though the peace of the world had been broken, in that world there is still hope. ... "O god, help me to set the course of peace." Features Key:

- Mix and Match: Play the game with its characters in any of its various forms - a person, a monster, a plant or even an artifact - in standard quests or in long explorable dungeons with tons of items to find. As well as simply answering questions and killing monsters when directly asked to, EQ3D players will need to use heuristic knowledge to figure out what to do to progress. Easier games were great to start out with, but since there was no penalty for incorrect answers or a failure to make logical deductions, you could progress at a rate that was found too easy to continue without long penalties for struggling, or too difficult to keep progressing without your hand on the hearts of EQ3D residents. AdventureQuest 3D was created to improve this condition.
- Customize the Game: With Multi-monitor support, many options for how to play and an adventure editor built right into the game, players can personalize the game to suit their play style. EQ3D is designed to be played in multiple ways. Willing to try a dungeon, willing to try a monster's persistent cells, willing to try to kill everything but willing to kite, willing to farm for items or quests? These are all ways to play AdventureQuest 3D. When exploring dungeons or working on the home world, PVE, or PvP modes help out players no matter how they choose to play.
- Try the First Ever PvP Game: AdventureQuest 3D was released with an epic BattleNetwork-powered Instant Action PvP component for players to easily play against each other while adventuring. With monster spawning, goal protection, item and coin pickups, even rewarding achievements for PvP, this is a variety of PvP that made it's marks and is a staple of the game.
- Heroic PvP: Support friendly Challenges, Friendly Races, Raid's, Sticker's and more. Players can really start to show off their PvP prowess in either BattleNetwork or OpenNet! There's room for everyone, everyone's welcome, so come have some fun!
- Weekly Raids: Raid bosses have begun to appear in AdventureQuest 3D's vast North American map, each with their own challenges. If you're a skilled Player

Everything about this game was intentionally done to be communist. The graphics are done entirely in Xith3D. All the music was composed by the Zu John Doe Band and recorded in RMX studio. The game was coded by Jacob Martelli from Zu. The main idea was to set the theme in a communist country, where the people were meant to be so happy and carefree. The only exception to this is that the game was originally set to run for one year after Soviet Union's collapse, so that Romanians would feel some kind of pride, the game would have been over. Unfortunately, this was after President Putin annexed the Crimea, and Ceausescu's regime fell. We just kept the communism, and made peace with the outside world. Otherwise, we kept the music, graphics and the gameplay. The objective is simple: to kill as many Americans as possible, without allowing yourself to be killed. You have two weapons at your disposal: your own guns, and the giant cannonball that will drop from the sky. The cannonball is like a bomb, except that it does not explode, nor hurt anyone when it hits them. The cannonballs are only useful for when you have no ammunition in your guns. The Game Mechanics: As you can see in the video above, the game is done in a classical shooter style. You press a fire button, and your character will shoot his gun. While you are holding the fire button, your character can shoot bullets and cannonballs. Bullets take one damage every second, no matter if you are hit or not. These bullets don't have a damage percentage. The cannonballs take 2 damage every second, unless they hit something. These cannonballs have a damage percentage. They behave like a bomb: they will drop when they hit an enemy, and will explode if they hit something, like a wall or a roof. The explosion is not very strong (one second of a single hit), but it is not meant to be. It's there to have a better idea of when you are about to be hit, and to add some variety to the game. You can only have one active weapon at once. With every enemy you kill, your guns and the cannonballs you were holding decrease in size by one damage level. When you have no ammunition left, your weapons become black. Each player starts with 10 ammo for the guns and 10 ammo for the cannonballs. Every enemy that you kill sends you one ammo. What's new in No Pineapple Left Behind:

"If you see a police car, don't get mad. Don't think it's your fault. Think it's the fault of the person who put the car there." – Will Smith I discovered Smith when I was eleven or twelve years old. We watched a few of the movies he appeared in, I remember an urban feel to them. Besides my hometown that was all I was exposed to. But as I got a little older, I discovered that people in Compton (Smith's neighborhood) were known gangsters, sports heroes, body guards etc. His introduction to the community has to be one of a kind. Growing up in his area, although he wasn't the first to be neighborhood hero, he was easily the most popular. The trailblazer for the hood. Throughout history, a "cool" white boy had to have a nice car. An automobile spoke volumes about coolness and made your neighborhood look more respectable. To have one, to have anything really, meant you were affluent. Will Smith was the epitome of cool. And to be honest his mom was cool as well. Smith appeared in a string of films during the 90's. Big, ain't nothin' wrong with that. Some of you may know what a recent comes (a close up we don't have in rap music videos anymore) is commonly called. I thought it was funny to have a silly mini-series based around it's main character. Most people like to look back on the music they grew up with, what's most notable about listening to "Fresh Willy Music" back in the day, was the sounds. It was less electronic and more in your face. But there's one thing I didn't fully appreciate at the time, and that is how to be Will Smith in a rap song. I had admired the way he danced, smiled, talked. I even called him my rap idol. When it came time to make a film based off of the Fresh Willy music, you might have guessed that he would be a central character. You had your intro sequence, a face off and then a glimpse of his killer look in a pirated movie. But one of the most memorable is The Undercover Brother. The Undercover Brother was a big hit, it's a very mean and strong sort of song
