The goal of Sozi is to provide a simple and lightweight application that will help you create stunning presentations without burdening you with the time-consuming tasks like setting up for each layer, settings up, etc. For that reason, we wanted to create a simple and easy to use product that would allow you to easily export your presentations in any browser and not have to edit the presented JSON file. Sozi Features: - Back-end processing: You can process presentations without any issues - Multiple export options: Multiple export options for applications such as Firefox, Chrome and Edge - Automated HTTP requests: The application sends HTTP requests for notifications and updates, so as to keep the application current. - Quality of Service is established: Whether your system will work or not, the tool will work as expected. In addition, you can export any presentation to PDF, Word, PowerPoint, Google Slides, Keynote, HTML and in general to any application that supports displaying these presentations. Creating and Exporting Presentations: Sozi works by processing a JSON file, that contains the information your presentation will be built up of. All you need to do is simply load the presentation and select the layer you want to use. And since each of these layers are fully customizable, you can easily change its appearance, text and background and publish your presentation without a hitch. In addition, the program offers the possibility to export the created presentations to PDF, Word, PowerPoint, Google Slides, Keynote, HTML and in general to any application that supports displaying these presentations. Sozi Shortcoming: Sozi allows you to create presentations without the need to configure each layer separately, however, there is also an inconvenience that comes with each layer's creation, which is that the presentation needs to be fully loaded before being edited and specified. Sozi Alternatives: There are many other software that will be able to do what Sozi is capable of. Some of these apps can even do everything that Sozi can, on top of the fact that they are more featured and efficient. However, before you go for another app, you may want to take a look at Sozi's alternatives below. This software is a tool that helps marketers

Rugged interface, but user-friendly functionality The setup is quick, uneventful and does not require any special attention from your part, except for specifying the location where you want to decompress the archive. Upon launch, you are prompted to load your SVG file from the directory you are storing it on your HDD. Once you load the file, the application enables you to preview the various settings and tools to design the first freely laid out presentation. The idea behind the application is to allow you to create presentations by using various layers independently. The layers are employed to add a fixed background to your frames and setting one item up entails zooming and editing the desired graphic element or text in your file. Enables you to run the presentations in your default browser It is worth mentioning that the utility allows you to execute the presentation in any available browser. However, the setback here is that you need to make sure that the HTML presentation is in the same directory as the JSON file that is created during the save, as this is where the data the editor accounts for when running the presentation. On a side note, the editor saves the presentation automatically as soon as you are done with each layer. Then again, the app also includes a dedicated save button that you can use to save your progress at any point. At the same time, you should know that the original file is not altered in any way. Considering that the application's role is to help you create presentations in a more flexible layout, you will be happy to learn that you can specify various parameters on how it should work. Therefore, you can define each layer's opacity, establish the duration they should appear, transition interval, relative zoom in the page and select the timing function.
