TunesKit iPhone Data Recovery 2.2.0.25 Crack .Q: How to check if character followed by one or two digits is a number in PHP I am trying to validate each character in a string separated by commas. The validation should be done only if the last character is a number, which will be added to a total sum. Let's say I have this text: $str = '3, 12.' (can be a maximum of 2 commas) and I have to check if this '3' is followed by a number (positive or negative). The conditions are: $str == '3, 12.' => ok $str == '3, 12' => ok $str == '3 12, 12 => not ok $str == '3, 12. => not ok '3' followed by a number is not ok. How can I do it? I've tried this: preg_match('/^[0-9]+$', $str) But it doesn't seem to work A: Try: if (strpos($str, ',') == -1) and a lot of other people...and you have to keep shopping around. The problem is that you need to decide what you actually want in the computer so you can look at the kind of PC it would run - you may not want to spend much on an HTPC (home theatre PC) if you prefer watching TV on your telly, for example, but you might be considering a gaming system for which it makes more sense to spend a bit more. No. 7,215,876 to Vincent et al. discloses a beverage maker for making a concentrate by mixing together soluble and insoluble materials. This has many inherent limitations. Among other things, it is not possible to drink the entire concentrate without dilution. Further, the concentrate will only dissolve into a "medium" of the same or lesser "power" as the "rich" solution being drunk. While this is useful for cooking, it is not desirable for human consumption and is of no practical use in the field. If the water is not potable, then it must be boiled prior to serving. U.S. Pat. No. 7,236,036 to Vincent et al. also discloses a beverage maker. This has many inherent limitations. This is not an integral unit designed to be installed at the base of the drinking device. Nor can it be easily adapted to account for changes in the beverage being made. U.S. Pat. No. 6,808,593 to Vincent et al. discloses a device for brewing coffee using a disposable container. The container can hold between 400 and 800 mL of water. Since the container is disposable, so too is the coffee made therein. The brewed coffee can remain in the container for 30 minutes to 90 minutes. The coffee can be served hot or cold. This is a useful device for people who cannot drink coffee right away. However, it is not a single unit that can be easily attached to the base of a drinking device and used in conjunction with that drinking device. U.S. Pat. No. 6,673,250 to Vincent et al. discloses a coffee brewing device with a beverage container that can hold between 400 and 800 mL of
