For anything more than a simple copy and paste, you really need to learn the Photoshop editing and layering system if you want to do anything complicated and creative. Blend Images Blending two or more images together is a very useful tool. You can blend images together to give them an overlay one over another. You can merge two images together to create a hybrid — or web — image that is very useful for web graphics. Use Blending to Combine Objects in the Photo Editor The easiest way to create a blended image in Photoshop is to bring together two or more objects in a photo editor and then use the Blending command to blend them together. You can use a blended image for a cool effect with a brushed metal look or you can use blended images to achieve beautiful effects in Flash animations. Use Magic Wand and the Blend Option Use the Magic Wand to select a specific part of the image and use the Blending command to make sure that the selection stays the same, or blends together, with the rest of the image. Use the Layer Blending Option Use the Layer Blending option to create beautiful gradients in your images. The Layer Blending option is better than the Compositing option because in the Layer Blending option, you can control all aspects of blending in the Layer dialog box. Blending works by placing a new layer over the original image that contains the selection you made in the previous step. Then you use the Blending Mode for the Layer dialog box to define the blending effect. You can change the settings to choose from Color, Lighten, Multiply, Screen, Overlay, Soft Light, Overlay Dissolve, Soft Light Dissolve, Screen Dissolve, and Hard Light. You also add a blending color to the image — for example, red. Create a Gradient with Photoshop You use Gradient Fill to create very cool images and make art. Gradients make it easy to place another object in the middle of the image or create a gradient in the background that appears to be part of the image. Think of a gradient as a colored slope that goes from one color to another. The colors that you place at the top of the image can be any color, and the colors that you place at the bottom of the image can be any color. You also can control the gradient with the sliders in the Gradient dialog box. You can change the Angle setting to choose the direction of the slope

GARDA Sergeant Eamonn Duffy made a protected disclosure to the tribunal which led to the prosecution of former leader of Sinn Féin, Gerry Adams. The claims were made in a written statement to the tribunal by Sergeant Duffy in September 2015. It is the second time Sgt Duffy has made a protected disclosure under the Garda Síochána Ethics Office Code of Ethics. In September 2014 Sergeant Duffy, then the Garda Press Association's chief executive, made a protected disclosure against Minister for Justice Alan Shatter. In the statement Sgt Duffy alleged he had been contacted by a "senior Garda" regarding confidential information about Mr Shatter. In his statement Sgt Duffy claimed that at the time he thought the officer was connected to the investigation of the then Sinn Féin leader Gerry Adams. Earlier last year, Sgt Duffy's colleague, Garda Commissioner Martin Callinan made a protected disclosure against Mr Adams in relation to the investigation into the killing of journalist Veronica Guerin in Dublin. Sgt Duffy's statement states: "The Minister at the time contacted me and I took it that he was connected to my contact regarding the ethics of Mr Shatter, because he referred to an investigation regarding Mr Adams," and "I then believed that it was about Mr Adams and that was the main reason I was interested in this issue." He added: "I accepted that as a citizen I was not entitled to talk to the Garda Síochána and I promised him that I would not talk to anyone else about this issue." Shortly after Sgt Duffy made the disclosure, the tribunal upheld a complaint by Mr Adams against Mr Shatter's department and on December 8th the department dismissed Mr Adams' claim. There is no record of Sgt Duffy's disclosure being made to the tribunal and the tribunal's register of protected disclosures does not show that it was made. It is recorded only on a garda register. In his statement, Sgt Duffy said: "I fully supported the Department's decision to dismiss Mr Adams' claim and I would not have done this for any party, be it political, political bloc or any pressure group. "The meeting with the Minister was a genuine mistake and I sincerely regret having done so," Sgt Duffy said.

Q: How can I setup a default theme for all cells? I'm trying to setup a row with one image. I have a default view on the message section. In that view, I would like to set the image of this row as a default (theme for all cells). I have set Image and Label to image and H1 and H2 (as title). I'm trying to add the following attributes: {table.entry-title__cell.field-wrapper.image.image-container} {table.entry-title__cell.field-wrapper h1} {table.entry-title__cell.field-wrapper h2} {table.entry-title__cell.field-wrapper.image-container} This doesn't work... any way to make a attribute for all cells inside this row? A: Find below the attribute to use in the style: You do not want use table.entry-title__cell.field-wrapper because this tag will wrap your Image and Label as their are, and what you want to add is only the image. So I suggest to change the default behaviour of this to run the class 'no-image' and in your new view you can use your new custom style to make it yours: .no-image { display: none; } To apply this custom style to all cells in your views you need to add: {content-view.entry-title__cell:not(.no-image)} the U.S. than in the U.K. Not very promising... In what is surely a massive blow to Liam Fox, the Foreign Secretary's controversial doctrine of Britain never having 'got out of Europe' has been demolished by the European Commission. The European Commission's competition chief Margrethe Vestager is reported to have made clear that the British Government can no longer set policy in this area: "I believe that it is important to state that the British Government is of the opinion that the EU cannot adopt binding rules on public procurement and yet can only come up with non-binding recommendations," she said. Indeed, the E.U. is notoriously protective over matters like security and defence, and Britain has committed to the EU's Permanent Structured Cooperation (PESCO) treaty on the development of a European Army in which it has a junior role.
