Multiple views of an image Thanks to Photoshop's multi-view technology, you have several options for viewing the same image. Figure 3-3 shows the multi-view options (you can see the four options in this figure): Figure 3-3: Multiple views of the same image. The first view is the default view where you see the entire layer. The next two views are the same image, but with transparency. The outer view shows the entire image with the canvas background, and the inner view shows the opaque transparent areas. Risk factors for nosocomial infection with Klebsiella pneumoniae in a neonatal intensive care unit. To identify risk factors associated with nosocomial infection with K. pneumoniae. Prospective, controlled study. Preterm neonatal intensive care unit at a university hospital. The 1231 neonates admitted to the unit in the 10 months before and after a measure was instituted to prevent K. pneumoniae infection. During the study period, 6 of the 1231 neonates had infections caused by K. pneumoniae, which was a rate of infection of 5.2/1000 admissions. Two of the infants died. Nosocomial infection with K. pneumoniae was acquired most often via skin flora. Age less than 3 days was associated with increased risk of infection ( $p = 0.014$ ) and was also correlated with a higher rate of mortality. The use of central venous catheters was associated with a higher risk of infection ( $p = 0.005$ ). A multivariate model of risk factors was created. It can be used to predict likelihood of nosocomial infection with K. pneumoniae. We're suckers for our cats. (See our cat stories.) When I got married, my wife and I kept our cats as pets but soon found that they had several jobs on the farm. Cats provide a whole additional set of reasons to become attached to animals. Some cats work as nurses, hunt birds and rodents for us, guard us, and are just as independent as dogs. Trip Trap: The Sure Thing Scent hounds such as my two cats, Blanche and Bruce, use their noses to detect a wide range of prey animals, as well as threats to their owners. In one day of travel, Blanche had detected and killed at least two mice and a few small birds. I've seen Blanche working on the road, lapping up the scent of a rabbit or dog. Bruce has hunted wolves and lynxes for me, and a friend told me a story about a sheep dog that Bruce had a fight with on a meadow. I passed the story along to me, hoping Bruce would have a lucky day with a coyote. When he returned to the car, he meowed that he had caught a lamb and passed it back to me. My cat-assisted treasure hunt was complete. I've had several dogs in my life, including the seven-foot-tall dog that my grandfather brought to my farm in

There are numerous steps in the development of any novel, desirable plant germplasm. Plant breeding begins with the analysis and definition of problems and weaknesses of the current germplasm, the establishment of program goals, and the definition of specific breeding objectives. The next step is selection of germplasm that possess the traits to meet the program goals. The goal is to combine in a single variety or hybrid an improved combination of desirable traits from the parental germplasm. These important traits may include higher seed yield, resistance to diseases and insects, better stems and roots, tolerance to drought and heat, and better agronomic quality. Soybean, Glycine max (L.), is an important and valuable field crop. Thus, a continuing goal of plant breeders is to develop stable, high yielding soybean varieties that are agronomically sound. The reasons for this goal are to maximize the amount of grain produced on the land used and to supply food for both animals and humans. To accomplish this goal, the soybean breeder must select and develop soybean plants that have the traits that result in superior varieties. The oil extracted from soybeans is widely used in food products, such as margarine, cooking oil, and salad dressings. Soybean oil is composed of saturated, monounsaturated, and polyunsaturated fatty acids, with a typical composition of 11% palmitic, 4% stearic, 25% oleic, 50% linoleic, and 9% linolenic fatty acid content ("Economic Implications of Modified Soybean Traits Summary Report," Iowa Soybean Promotion Board & American Soybean Association Special Report 925, May 1990).
