Hotmail.com Hotmail.com is an email service provider owned and operated by Microsoft that competes with Google's Gmail, Yahoo! Mail and AOL. E-mail addresses for Hotmail can be created directly from a user's Windows Live ID. In addition, users can also use a Microsoft account for another e-mail service if they choose. The domain Hotmail.com is one of the oldest domain extensions with first registration on June 30, 1997. It was originally part of Hotmail. However, in 2002, the second level domain was retired and instead, Hotmail.com became the wildcard DNS name for all users. At the time of the Hotmail.com purchase, the domain was registered by Microsoft Corp. Premium At Hotmail.com, users of all nationalities and all services can receive an unlimited number of e-mail and other online messages from any address. Hotmail Plus Hotmail Plus is a monthly plan version of Hotmail with most of the features of Hotmail, and is currently not in use. Hotmail Business Hotmail Business is the same as Hotmail.com except that it's marketed towards businesses with 20 or more e-mail addresses. Hotmail.com in mobi Hotmail.com in mobi format is available on request. Hotmail.com in text Hotmail.com in text format can be downloaded from your account page. Hotmail.com eBooks On the first page of the Hotmail.com eBook collection, you'll find Hotmail eBooks. On the second page, you can find Hotmail eBooks in image and PDF formats. Hotmail.com surveys Hotmail.com surveys allows you to easily rate your own e-mails without
