Installation $ sudo port install py26-kiv $ sudo port install py26-wx If you want to build and run it on a Mac, you need to have Xcode installed. (Google how to do that.) For non-Mac users, you can use the wxPython 2.8.9 library. You also need to have the Xcode command line tools installed, and you need the file wxPython-2.8.9.1.framework. Both wx and py26 will fail to install on X11, which is the default on Macs, so you need to use a different environment (e.g. XQuartz, MacPorts, Homebrew), or use sudo and add -Darchetype=darwin-multi-console to the package. Please help make wxPython work on X11 so it's not necessary to switch to a different environment. Contents Installation It is recommended to build and test the game on a system with the matching Python version for "Kivy", the "py26-kiv" and "py26-wx" Python versions. Kivy and wxPython are Python 2.x libraries. PySide only works on Python 2.7.x and above, and it is the recommended version for Kivy as it provides additional Python bindings (besides the ones already provided by the Kivy project). However, most of the tutorials and examples mentioned in this article still apply, and most of them can be used using either "py26-kiv" or "py26-wx" Python versions. wxPython is recommended because it's free, much easier to install, and it provides a more complete set of bindings. Additionally, it allows to run Python applications without needing a real X11 session. If you install it, and can get it to work, you will be able to run the game (and the rest of the Kiv c9d1549cdd

Remembers Mars The music of the Mars Underground symbolizes a certain age, the age of going to concerts with long hair, and when you finally found a band you really "got" it. The band's music also has a certain air of coherence, familiar and still instantly recognizable. This rare insight into the group's history comes from Jim Morrison's old girlfriend Pam Butler, who after a while, became instrumental in Mars (no pun intended) music: "I always thought of myself as being kind of like Alice in Wonderland-Alice in Mars Underground," she told me last week from Rancho Santa Fe, her home, where she was trimming a large rosebush. "I believe that the minor changes are what make the difference. I think that there are so many different kinds of people, which tend to conflict, but they can all find themselves if they look within, if they allow themselves the hard work of self-discovery. The day that Mars Underground began, Jim made me realize that this was his big project, that this is all that he was about, and that he needed to direct me how to deal with this: ‘This is what you’re going to do; this is how you’re going to live.’ I’ve always found my way. I can always find my way.” Back in the 70’s Butler was in a band with the guitarist Jack Nitzsche, and they played many of Jim Morrison’s songs. For example, on Mars Underground “Who’s Next”, Butler sang “I’ve gotta go, my love is calling....”; while Nitzsche was playing “You know I’m going to need your body”. Butler and Nitzsche both agreed to let Bob Baille, who had played with Jim Morrison and The Doors, do all of the vocals on Mars Underground. In fact, Mars Underground’s music sounds very much like Morrison’s music. I’ve always been fascinated by Mars Underground due to the fact that they have a handful of shirts hanging on the walls of their record label Interscope Records HQ. Here’s a photo of Mars Underground getting ready for “and its costumes as well” (as they sing in “Do You Wanna Move”) by stripping down and waiting
