To establish methadone pharmacokinetic profiles in children, with particular attention to the role of age, weight, and dialysate flow rate on methadone clearance. We administered methadone hydrochloride (Dolophine; Abbott Laboratories, North Chicago, IL) at increasing doses, starting with 0.10 mg/kg/d over 5 days and increasing dose by 0.05 mg/kg every 5 days to a maximum dose of 0.40 mg/kg/d, to 14 children aged 1.4-12.8 years (mean age, 5.7+/-3.5; SD) with end-stage renal disease, in an open-label, randomized, two-period crossover study. Serum methadone concentrations were measured by gas chromatography-mass spectrometry. Dose-normalized clearance ranged from 0.027 to 0.070 L/min/kg (40-100 mL/min/1.73 m(2)). Body weight was a better predictor of methadone clearance than age. Methadone clearance was not statistically significantly different for any age stratum. Pediatric patients with end-stage renal disease, who had a small number of unusually low clearances, may show age-related variability in methadone clearance, but differences that are not statistically significant. For any age stratum, a dialysate flow rate of 500 mL/min should be used to optimize methadone clearance in children.Q: Joomla 2.5: Including/Extending controllers or model files? Are there any benefits to extending controllers and/or models in Joomla 2.5? I am currently trying to extend the Joomla core controllers in a project where I am required to customize the core with a new component. If there are benefits to extending controllers and/or models, what do you think are the main reasons to extend instead of modifying the core files? A: I think it depends on your experience with Joomla. If you have very little experience of Joomla and you are handed control of a 6d1f23a050
