The Quaker State brand name has been used for several different oil companies over the past several years, with the current company being the fourth iteration. History The Quaker State Oil Refining Company was originally established in 1902 as the Quaker State Oil Refinery Company. The company originally produced fuel, lubricants and oils, including candle oil. In the early years of production, the company was served by its own electric railway system and a 25-acre (100,000 m²) processing facility in Marcus Hook, Pennsylvania. In the 1940s the company re-oriented itself to the production of lubricants and oils. By the 1950s, the company was supplying lubricants to the United States Air Force. From the 1960s onward, the company continued a diversification effort, including the acquisition of a refining and marketing operation in Venezuela, and a 50% interest in the Puerto Rico-based Puerto Rico Oil Company. The company acquired a St. Croix, US Virgin Islands-based refiner in the 1980s, but did not include it in the sale of the Puerto Rico operations. Quaker State acquired the product line of Ergon, a United Kingdom based lubricants manufacturer, in 1994. The Quaker State brand name was introduced to the market by Quaker State, along with the acquisition of the brand name from Hewlett-Packard. The United Kingdom operations were incorporated into Quaker State as a wholly owned subsidiary in 1995. In 1996, Quaker State sold its marketing operations, including mobile stations and point of sale displays, to Vardar Petroleum Services, owned by Carpenter Technology Corporation. In 1998, Quaker State and Scherer International formed a joint venture to operate Scherer's one-time Phillips 66 fuel oil production facilities at Tuxedo, New York.

However, it doesn't work when I try to escape the quotation mark to match the \ (\). For example, if I enter in "Hello World!", it doesn't find it. However, if I enter "Hello\ World!", it does find it. Why is it not matching the \? Also, I'm only using the \ to escape the quotation mark and not any other characters. Why not any other characters? This is my code: `preg_match_all('/"["]/', $data, $arr);` A: You have to use another delimiter that is not a part of the string, like another pair of double quotation marks, ", for example, like this: `preg_match_all('/"([^"])" /', $data, $arr);` And if the quoted string only contains normal characters that are part of the regular expression, you don't need to escape them. Nunavut Nunavut or Nunavik is an Inuit region of northern Québec, Canada encompassing much of the Canadian Arctic Archipelago within the Canadian territory of Nunavut. Nunavut lies just outside the North American borders. Nunavut is the second largest province of Canada in land area. As of the 2016 census, the population of the three northernmost communities was 3,213, and Inuit comprise nearly 75% of the population. There are no cities or towns in Nunavut, and it is the only Canadian jurisdiction that does not have any urban population. By area, Nunavut is the second largest

Canadian territory, after Manitoba. History The Nunavik region formed part of the Northwest Territories prior
