Any ideas? A: As stated, the difference is that in the case of the first image, the image is smaller (and thus fitting the rules) while in the second image the size of the image exceeds the allowed max size (what in the end, makes the image not uploading). In the first image, you can see this from the height/width of the image itself as well as from the size of the thumbnail displayed for the image. As you can see, the height of the image is 772 while the thumbnail size is 166 x 132. In the second image, the thumbnail doesn't have the "166x132" size, so by the max size rules, the image is not allowed to be uploaded. In case you want to resize your images for upload, the following code should help you get the right size for your thumbnails as well as for the uploaded image: " onerror="this.src='/php/im ages/no_image.jpg'" /> " onerror="this.src=URL.createObjectURL(new Blob(['<<URL.createObjectURL(new Blob([' As you can see, the original image is being used as a placeholder and when an error is detected, a fresh image is shown. The old image is then being removed (with the help of URL.createObjectURL()) and the new one is then being set as the image for the page.
