Metro 2033 Filter Cheat

If you are stuck at any point in the game, and have no reference of how to proceed, either use the 'Patch Level' tool to patch in a map to a level that you know how to finish or one of our 'awesome' levels to help you. Even if you cant recall any of the places you went to, you can start over from the beginning of the game and you can even have a moveable save point. One of the perks you have is a'moveable save point' as you explore the depths of the Metro. Use it to set up a moveable save point so you can always continue your quest without losing any progress. There are a few places in the tunnels where you need to stock up on ammo. The Food Depot has most of what you need, but there's only so much food the walkers can eat. The Doc's office has medical supplies and...stupid stuff. There are some unknown supplies as well, they look like old lab materials but the descriptions are in Russian. Each level has its own supplies that are available to you. You can get whatever supplies you need from the Supply Cheat. There are two perks you can get at the level selection screen that give you some information about where you are. If you choose the 'Back to Map' icon it will show you a map of the Metro, and if you choose the 'Damage Reducer' icon it will show you where your current HP is. There's a filter counter on your HUD, just above your compass. When you start up Metro 2033, there will be a game icon on your HUD called 'Toggle Filter', which is either 'Off', 'Off above map' or 'On above map'. If you have 'On above map' selected when you start the game up, whenever you activate any of your primary means of transportation (like a car or a train) it will automatically switch to 'Off above map', and vice-versa. If you have 'Off' selected it will switch on whichever way you're going when you activate it. One other thing about this icon: It will flip back to 'On above map' whenever you're in a room that's filled with toxic gas. So that means if you're not in a gas mask, activating the train or car transportation will automatically switch to 'On above map'. It's good for the lazy, because you don't have to open and close your gas mask all the time, it just automatically switches back on when you're near something that has toxic gas. 5ec8ef588b
