4. if you use a windows computer, you will need to download the file tunelab.dll from . if you use a mac or linux computer, you will not need the file. if you have already downloaded the file, you can skip to step 5. i tried to tune my piano and make it a better instrument with the cybertuner and tunelab software. i have to admit that i was not very good at tuning by ear but now i have a lot of experience and i tune almost all the time. i really appreciate the tunelab software.unfortunately i can not find any software for a roland piano. the roland software is not available for android. i can not see an entropy tuer either. the best one is cybertuner, which is very sensitive and precise, but i do not get the good result with it. i would be happy if i could find some software for a roland piano. on the other hand, i have to accept that there are no audio files available for testing. does anyone know where i can find something like this?maybe i could find some kind of software that would allow me to upload my own audio files to the software? i have to admit that i do not have a "good" piano at all. i have a roland mt-32 and a roland fpx-80. i have to admit that i do not know if this has an effect on the tuning. but i would be really happy if i could find some software for it. does anyone know where i can find software that works with roland pianos?thank you for your helpalexander cybertuner and tunelab are both equally easy to use, just a little different. cybertuner gives you the option of a few different methods of tuning, the most commonly used being the steinway method. the zoom method is just as easy as the steinway method, and does not require any prior knowledge of the mathematical principles of tuning. the steinway method requires a little bit of understanding, but it is an amazing starting point for tuning your piano. you can also download free steinway tuning patches that you can apply to your piano.
