Can you believe that someone has actually developed a Visual Studio extension which will attempt to unblock your PC or remove registry errors? Sounds ridiculous, right? Well, it's true. A young man by the name of Daniel Arends (creator) and a computer science student at Boise State University, he has created this Visual Studio extension and yes, it is capable of cleaning up all those errors which plagued the system. This Visual Studio extension has been tested on Windows XP, Vista, and Windows 7. However, it doesn't guarantee that it will work with all versions of the Operating System and if it doesn't work with your computer, then you can try to get it repaired manually. The download page has instructions that are easy to follow and show you how to get the extension to unblock your PC. The best part of this Visual Studio extension is that it does not come with a manual. So if you are a novice and don't know how to get your PC unblocked, then you can try to look for online help and search the web for instructions. However, if you are more proficient, then you can just use the program and work as intended. It is easy to use and does not require you to be an expert to get the job done. The extension comes in two versions. One for Windows XP and another for Windows Vista and Windows 7. The reason for that is that the extension will only work with the older versions and you will not be
