That has nothing to do with the lack of updates on my website (which was due to an oversight on my part), it's just that I've been so busy lately and haven't had time to post. In December, my mother was rushed to the hospital with complications of congestive heart failure. She eventually was discharged home but we'll just have to be on our toes as it is possible that she could come back at any time. As I've already mentioned, I've been busy trying to get ready to teach my upcoming 50 Ways to Save $1,000 a Month class at UF. I'll be doing it again on the 10th of February. I think I'm going to wait until February to actually start the class as a lot of you probably need to catch up on your shopping first. Evermap.AutoBatch.v1.3.for.Adobe.Acrobat.Incl.Keygen SSG.rarBALTIMORE (WJZ) — A photo of a police officer in Freddie Gray's face looking in pain is earning him a lot of praise. Political unknown James Davis captured the moment as Baltimore Police Officer Edward Nero laid on the ground suffering a severe injury. The injury occurred during a struggle with Gray, 25, of West Baltimore who was arrested Saturday for possessing a switch blade. The case of the injured officer is now under federal investigation with the U.S. Department of Justice. Gray was taken to the hospital where he died Sunday from critical injuries. Davis' photo went viral, earning him many accolades and some backlash from police supporters. His hope is that there is a new awareness of the dangers police officers face every day. "Because in this particular situation there is more police officers killed by civilians than there are killed by police officers. I think that's a disturbing statistic to us," Davis said. The Grays' attorney released this statement: "We have witnessed first-hand the officers' reaction to Mr. Gray's disability. We believe our client was targeted, pulled over at gunpoint and arrested for no legitimate reason. The action by the officers escalated the situation and ultimately led to Mr. Gray's death." Meanwhile, Gray's family was at his funeral Monday in Baltimore. Gray was fatally injured on April 12, and his funeral service was held in the funeral home he attended. Monday, April 14 marks three months to the day Gray was arrested and injured by the police. His death was ruled a homicide, and the case is now being investigated by the U.S. Department of Justice and State’s Attorney, Marilyn Mosby. His family has filed a federal civil rights lawsuit and are seeking $250 million. It is scheduled for trial in June.
