Now you can bring your very own beer to the beach on Sunday with one very small catch: you'll need to buy a minimum of $50 worth of a beer from the concession stand. If that's too expensive, you'll have to do your drinking at the beach-party spot across the street. The Beachfest Party Pong Room will be celebrating a 30th anniversary on Sunday, and it's decided to host a beer-tasting festival for their big day. That's a pretty niche thing for a 30th anniversary party, but thankfully there are limits to this event, like it will only be open to people 21 and older and admission will be $1 to get in and $5 to drink the brews. If you have a $50 bar tab, there will be $5 worth of craft beers to choose from, all available in 16-ounce glasses. If you're not a craft drinker, there will be a selection of local beers, including Bud Light, Miller Lite and Coors Light, also in 16-ounce glasses. The Beachfest Party will also have food available, but if you want to sample what the party is serving with your beer, you can head to Crabby's Restaurant across the street. The same goes for the party -- if you want to taste some food, you'll have to cross the street. To keep things sanitary, all of the beer will be hand-poured and won't be kept in any kegs. There will also be a DJ and plenty of activities for the kids, and the beach will be closed at 6 p.m. The Beachfest Party is on Sunday at the Pong Room, 2000 Beach Drive in Venice. Check back to the Times' Wordplay blog later in the day for details on the
