Main reason for using the trainer is to makeSodium selenite affects expression and secretion of bovine lactoferrin and interaction between lactoferrin and casein micelles. Selenium is necessary for optimal milk yield and milk quality in cows. However, the effect of sodium selenite on the lactoferrin (LF) expression and secretion in mammary gland and the interaction between lactoferrin and casein micelles was not determined. The present study found that sodium selenite can significantly increase the lactation performance and contribute to the expression and secretion of LF in mammary gland. Meanwhile, it also can significantly increase the lactose content and protein content of milk. In addition, we analyzed the protein, mRNA and promoter activity of LF and the interaction between LF and casein micelles in the mammary gland cells treated with sodium selenite. The results showed that sodium selenite could increase the mRNA, protein, and promoter activity of LF at a concentration of 50 µmol/L. At the same time, sodium selenite can affect the interaction between LF and casein micelles. Overall, our research demonstrates that sodium selenite can increase lactation performance and milk quality by regulating the expression and secretion of LF. Our results may provide useful information for designing new strategies to control milk quality in dairy cows.APP Information Download Version 1.32 (130113
